Why this role?

Project finance is one of the important pillars on which the entire Renewable Energy business stands. In the current business scenario wherein, this sector has been commoditized, project finance is where all the differential returns are made. Working in project finance at AMPIN provides an opportunity to connect with Indian as well as international lenders and grow your network for different funding requirements including project and corporate level loans. Additionally, it also provides an opportunity to understand and work in different segments of the value chain as we are involved in developing Utility as well as C&I renewable projects (Industry leader in C&I Business) with plans to enter manufacturing and Green Hydrogen business in near future. Value creation for all stakeholders is part of our Moto and working with us will provide you with innumerable opportunities to learn and grow professionally.

How you will contribute:
